LANGDON IS ENCOURAGED.

Citizens' Association Hopes for a New School and Other Needs.

The Northern Citizens' Association met at Langdon last evening.

Messrs. Duffey and Mothershead, a select committee, reported that they had secured seven school houses for the district.

The higher grades of the Langdon school, and that the prospects were bright for the employment of an additional teacher, and the opening of three new grades.

Attention was called to the sanitary condition of the present school building, and it was concluded, it was developed during the discussion that the district owned a school site between Langdon and Winthrop Heights, and that the chances for securing a new school house were good.

The committee on transportation reported that the station of the Washington and Maryland boulevard line would be located at the corner of Twentieth street and Rhode Island avenue, directly north of Langdon. It was also announced that a survey was being made by the Columbia railway along the Blackburg road, with a view to the extension of its line into the northeast section.

IT TAKEN THE POLICEMAN

Lee Started a Dog Fight Behind Officer Riley's House.

LIGHT DAY IN BOTH COURTS

Several Jury Trials Before Judge Miller, and Downtown Judge Kimball Dispensed Justice to Ordinary Offenders—Profanity Caused Many Arrests—Right of Road in Court.

Both of the police court judges had an easy time today. Judge Miller's cases were all jury trials, and Judge Kimball only had twenty defendants looking for freedom.

Edward Lee headed the list in the latter's court, and had been superintending a dog fight. Lee very foolishly brought the match about right in the rear of Officer Riley's residence, and that policeman was awakened by the noise.

Officer Riley hurriedly threw on his clothes and ran out and placed Lee under arrest for being loud and boisterous.

Lee did not get a chance to tell his side of the dog story to Judge Kimball, as he pleaded guilty, and his honor sent him up stairs to be locked before Judge Miller for assaulting Officer Riley after being placed under arrest.

The next gentleman, who was also of color, was George Butler, who said he was not guilty of "cussin' and swearin'."

FEEL OUT WITH HIS FRIEND.

Butler and some friend had a difficulty at a "barber shop." They stepped outside to have it out, and had to be taken in.

Butler's friend forfeited his collateral, and Butler declared that he was not the fellow; that it was a dunderhead man who done the "cussin'."

He didn't know his name, and so got $5 for his ignorance.

In Buckman and Anderson, two negroes, assaulted their brother-in-law on Navy place last week. Officer Miller has been looking for them since, and last night he hauled them in.

Buckman didn't know a thing about it, and Anderson said he and Buckman were "fussin'," and that man was no 'mo' around dan you was.

The judge wanted to know why he was fussing and using bad language on the street, and he was "telling" that fellow not to hit his sister dat away on de street.

He did not explain to the judge where he wanted him to chastise his sister, and, as Buckman had not seen or heard a thing, they both went down for fifteen days to think the matter over.

"Seemore Lacey," called the clerk, and Lacey asked for Lawyer Moss.

DEMOLISHED THE COFFIN.

Lacey is the biggest dude that has been in the dock for some time, and was charged with careless driving. While driving to Uniontown he ran into Mr. Anderson's wagon and demolished the right side of the right side. Anderson is an undertaker, and had a coffin in his wagon, which was also demolished.

Lacey had a very shaky wagon, and the hind part rolled violently. In endeavoring to pass Anderson's wagon on a very narrow road he rolled the coffin overboard, and thereby causing the collapse of the latter.

Counsel for the defense seemed to do most of the testifying, and his honor asked him to step up on the stand if he wished to testify, otherwise to let the witness do.

"You have the bad habit of interrupting testimony, which is an entirely wrong thing for you to do," said the judge to the counsel, and told him that he had no doubt whatever about the case, and proof all showed that Lacey was the guilty one. Lacey to pass if he had been careful.

"He is fined ten dollars," remarked the judge, in conclusion.

William Branson, a colored man, about forty years old, then told the queerest story of distress heard for some time.

BRANSON'S STRANGESTALE.

He was arrested for begging pennies to bury his child. He told the court that as he was coming along home from work last night he met a lady who said she was in distress and asked him if he had any money. She had just lost her child and wanted money to bury it.

"You don't know this woman, you say, and never saw her before," said the judge. Branson didn't think he ever had, and his honor told him that sort of story didn't go, and gave him thirty days.

In Judge Miller's court Timothy Branson complained of John Washington hitting him in the back with a stone. The lawyer for the defense asked the boy if he hadn't talked the matter over with his two witnesses, and made up his mind to swear out a warrant, so as to get witness fees.

A whole line of 10-year-olds lined up to testify in behalf of the defense, but his honor dismissed the case.

FOUNDRY CHURCH SELECTED.

Christian Convention Will Be Held Within Its Historic Walls.

Foundry Church, corner of Fourteenth and G streets northwest, has been selected by the committee as the place for the holding of the first annual convention of the National Gospel Mission Union on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, October 15, 16, and 17.

Several churches were under consideration, but this was decided to be more central and easier of access than any other available.

The old church has a grand history of nearly eighty years, but it is believed that the past will be more notable than the great convention to be held week after next.

Dr. Brown, the pastor, is enthusiastic in anticipation of the feast of spiritual good things to be observed, as the committee of arrangements, and all who know the personnel of the delegates and the character of the services.

Responses from every section of the country are being received by each mail, and delegates will be present from Boston on the East to St. Louis on the West. Fully 100 superintendents of missions, city missionaries, and matrons of homes for women are expected.

The management of this convention believes that it will stir the entire religious part of the community to a greater sense of the needs of the day, and give to all churches a spiritual impetus that will be felt throughout the coming winter.

The local associations are choosing prominent speakers to represent their various lines of work, and the programme is going to abound with gems of the brightest radiance.

SUED FOR INFRINGEMENT

Baltimore Parties Claim Patents Used on Ninth Street Line.

They Petition for Profits Derived Therefrom and Set Forth the Alleged Devices Involved.

The Metropolitan Railroad Company was this morning made defendant to a suit for injunction because of alleged infringement of patents in its new system on the Ninth street line.

Elias E. Ries and Albert Henderson, both of Baltimore, are the complainants in the case. It is claimed that the company is unlawfully using eight patents.

It was stated by the petitioning parties that Mr. Ries invented an improvement in the conduit for electric and cable railways, March 23, 1886. One-half interest in the invention was assigned to Mr. Henderson, and that man was no 'mo' around dan you was.

Half a dozen other letters patent were taken out by the plaintiffs. It was deposed, on the following date: September 20, 1887, and May 29, 1888, both for improved conduit; July 10, 1888, improvement in electric railways; July 10, 1888, improvement in combined electric railway and wire conduit; August 27, 1889, improvement in electric railway crossing, and August 27, 1889, improvement in underground conduit.

The petitioners claimed the sole ownership of the patents and said they had notified the company of its infringement, but the notice had been disregarded, and since January 1 last the railroad has been making and using the various devices.

Similar suits have been entered by the same parties against electric lines in Baltimore, Philadelphia and other cities using devices alleged to be held under the above-mentioned patents.

SHAKE UP IN HIGH PLACES

Staff Corps Changes Consequent Upon Gen. Miles' Appointment.

Several Officers Now on Duty Here Will Be Ordered Away and New Ones Fill Their Places.

The assignment of Maj. Gen. Miles to succeed Gen. Schofield in command of the Army, will occasion the transfer of a number of officers on duty in Washington, the more important of which will be in the Adjutant General's department.

The details of the five assistant adjutant generals on duty here are all changed. Col. Miles' coming to Washington is the assignment of Gen. Ruger to command the department of the East, headquarters New York city, relieving Col. Breck, who has been assigned to duty as adjutant-general of the department of the West, headquarters St. Louis.

Gen. Miles' selection of his aides-de-camp has not yet been announced. These are personal assistants and will be made known in the order issued when he assumes command of the Army.

The other important changes occasioned by Gen. Miles' coming to Washington is the assignment of Gen. Ruger to command the department of the East. His assuming command of this department will occasion some important changes in it. These, however, are matters that cannot be foretold and will be announced by Gen. Ruger from New York.

WRESTLED WITH A GORILLA.

Man-Eater Escaped From a Circus and Frightened Kansas Farmers.

Independence, Kan., Oct. 3.—A ferocious gorilla belonging to a circus escaped from its cage yesterday afternoon while the attendant, James Rafferty, was feeding the animals, and caused a panic among the ruralists, who were interested onlookers.

The beast attacked a cow at first, but seeing a test dog, scrambled over the fence and escaped a panic among the ruralists, who were interested onlookers.

The beast attacked a cow at first, but seeing a test dog, scrambled over the fence and escaped a panic among the ruralists, who were interested onlookers.

Finally Rafferty, assisted by the circus attendants, located the man-eater, but it was not subdued until Rafferty had been badly clawed.

AFRAID OF HER HUSBAND

Woes of the Shreves Family Aired in Police Court.

MOTHER-IN-LAW IN THE CASE

Wife Declared He Threatened Her and Treated Her Most Cruelly. Bride Is But a Girl and Miss Has Not Been Her Wedded Lot—Judge Miller's Good Advice.

Charles E. Shreves, an usher in one of the theaters, was in Judge Miller's court this morning charged with threatening his wife, Miss E. Shreves.

Mr. and Mrs. Shreves have been married but thirteen months. Mr. Shreves was at one time a lithographer and after losing his position was employed as an usher.

Mrs. Shreves told the judge how Shreves has abused her for some time, that he is a hard drinking man, and that on Saturday night he came home drunk and abused her, struck her and prevented her from leaving the house, when she tried to go to her mother's house for protection.

Mrs. Shreves claims also that he met her on the street Monday, after she had left his bed and board, and after receiving her refusal to return home with him, he struck her with his fist.

BLAMED THE MOTHER-IN-LAW.

Mrs. Gilbert, the mother-in-law, played an important part in the case, as the defendant's counsel, Mr. Campbell Carrington, tried to show that she was the whole cause of the trouble.

Shreves, who is about five inches smaller than his wife, took the stand and told of his wife striking him in the nose on the night in question and drawing blood. He swore that he was not drunk, but had liquor about him. He said he loved his wife and did not want her to leave him.

They have been rooming at Thirteenth and H streets, and he is making $4 a week as usher. He declared since he lost his position as lithographer he has been treated like a dog.

"How do you support your wife?" inquired the judge.

"As best he can," interjected Mr. Carrington, when his client was stuck for an answer.

You can't afford to buy whisky too on that salary," said his honor.

THINKS SHE WAS HYPNOTIZED.

Mrs. Shreves, who is a very pretty brunette and only seventeen years old, was called to the stand again and said that her love for the defendant was entirely dead, and that if it had not been for the "psychological influence" over her she would have left him long ago.

"You mean he has hypnotized you?" inquired the court.

"Yes, sir; I must have been hypnotized to have put up with his abuse as long as I did."

"Who told you about these serious threats you say he made to other parties?"

"Your honor, I am not at liberty to say."

"But I want to know who that was," said his honor.

"May I answer that question?" asked the girl's mother.

To proceed, she asked.

Mrs. Gilbert then told that she had been informed by a gentleman whom she had promised faithfully not to mix up in the matter that neither she nor her daughter were safe from this man.

"Probably the lady refers to me," spoke up a voice from the crowded courtroom, and when the owner appeared on the scene it proved to be Detective McDevitt.

McDevitt as PEACEMAKER.

Mr. McDevitt was sworn, and said he thought the whole thing was a case of deep love on the young man's side. He had come to him and told him of his troubles, and he (McDevitt) had gone up to see Mrs. Gilbert to attempt to bring about a reconciliation.

The young man had given his word of honor to do as he was told, and he had intended to inform Mrs. Shreves of this statement last night, but had been unexpectedly prevented.

"No doubt, your honor," he added, "if I had been able to do so this warrant would not have been made out."

Judge Miller then called Shreves to the stand, and gave him a sound lecture.

"You are in no danger from her, and never have been, in my judgment, as you are smaller than your wife. You are twenty-four years old and she is seventeen. The idea is ridiculous. But you must keep the peace, and stay away from her."

"I'll take your personal bonds for six months, and I warn you that you had better behave yourself."

NOTHING TO DO WITH THE CASE.

Mrs. Baguley May Not File a Supplemental Divorce Petition.

In the divorce suit of the Baguleys, that is now pending, Judge Justice Brightman today dismissed the wife's petition for leave to file a supplemental bill.

In this petition the circumstance of Mr. Baguley's driving a revolver on Mr. Wiswell, clerk to Mrs. Baguley's counsel, was related and leave for the filing of a new bill was asked on the ground that Mrs. Baguley was in mortal fear of her husband.

The court said that the incident between the husband and Wiswell had nothing to do with the case and there was no evidence that the wife had been intimidated.
